Intensify our campaign for a new social contract to end child labour

Name:

A new social contract to end child labour

Description:

We aim to build momentum for a new social contract where parents can count on a quality job, where they can count on social protection as resilience against unemployment, national or global shocks, and where human and labour rights are respected.

Implementation plan:

We pledge to intensify our campaign for a new social contract where mandated due diligence and disclosure hold companies accountable through their supply chains, particularly in agriculture, manufacturing and mining.

We will escalate the demand for universal social protection with a global social protection fund to close the funding gap and to ensure families in our poorest nations do not face the heartbreaking choice of seeing their children forced to work for survival.

Children's right to protection from exploitation enshrined in ILO Convention 182 has been ratified by every ILO member state. And those 14 countries yet to ratify the ILO minimum working age Convention 138 must step up. The government can and must ensure compliance.

Impact:

The campaign will help build global collective responsibility to ensure children have a childhood, quality education and can look forward optimistically to future life choices.
