TERRA RENAISSANCE, JAPAN

Encourage people to take action toward the elimination of child labour through the issue of child soldiers

Name:

Encourage people to take action toward the elimination of child labour by telling people about the issues of child soldiers.

Description:

Terra Renaissance is a non-governmental organization based in Japan. We have been working for world peace and currently work in six countries, Cambodia, Laos, Uganda, DR Congo, Burundi and Japan. In Particular, we conduct a project for the integration of former child soldiers in Uganda and projects aimed at preventing the conscription of children in DR Congo. Leveraging the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labour, we will reach and tell more people about the issue of child labour and encourage them to take action through seminars, publications, and social media related to the issue of child soldiers, which we are focusing on.

Implementation plan:

We will conduct the following activities:

1. Organize a seminar in conjunction with the World Day against Child Labour to promote the International Year for the Elimination of Child labour with Japanese citizens' targets.
2. Publish a white paper on child soldiers. (in Japanese)
3. Become a member of Alliance 8.7.
4. Actively participate in The Stop Child Labour Network activities.

Impact:

Through our activities, especially awareness-raising activities on the issue of child soldiers, people (mainly citizens and business people) will deepen their understanding of the child labour issue and inspire each one of them to consider what they could do to achieve SDG 8.7 and take action.
