ZAFIN, CANADA

Help to end child labour and all forms of forced and compulsory labour

Name:

Zafin's commits to the UNGC's Action pledge 2021 to help eliminate child labour.

Description:

152 million children are still subject to child labour today. Children should be in school, not at work. No child should be deprived of a childhood, safety, health or education. Child labour has no place in our society, and at Zafin we passionately believe companies have a duty to stop this. Ending child labour and all forms of forced and compulsory labour is integral to the Ten Principles of the UN Global Compact. As a proud member of the UNGC Zafin is committed to helping stop these abuses. In the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labour, Zafin proudly submits the UN Global Compact 2021 Action Pledge on eliminating child labour. Our commitment to work with and engage actively with all our relevant stakeholders to step up efforts to help end the scourge of child labour and forced labour. We wish to inspire companies to join us by sharing good practices and together translate business aspirations into business actions.

This includes stepping up due diligence on human rights and identifying, prevent, mitigate and account for all adverse human rights impacts in their operations and value chains, which will help tackle child labour and forced labour. Zafin aspires to make a real impact by adopting a holistic approach across all our teams across the globe and by collaborating with all our stakeholders on this critical issue.

Implementation plan:

Draft, approve and implement new legislation and/or guidelines to promote internal and public procurement as an instrument to fight child labour.

Impact:

We will announce our pledge and raise awareness on social media. sharing important facts about child labour.
